ECONOMY IN COAL

Fuchuan Lump Coal stands for economy in fuel value. All Lump Coals have a large percentage

INDIA'S MILITARY COSTS.

ASSEMBLY SENSATION.

GENERAL'S STARTLING STATEMENT.

DELHI, March 8.

A sensation was caused in the Legislative Assembly by a speech by the Commander-in-Chief, Lord Rawlinson replying to criticisms of military expenditure.

Lord Rawlinson pointed out that the army in India had been reduced by 9,000 men since 1914. No further reduction was possible at present, he said, owing to seditious propaganda amongst the population and troops. He would consider further reductions when united India showed loyalty and devotion to the British Empire; he feared the ability of the Government to maintain law and order would be seriously tested at no distant date.

UNOFFICIAL ATTACK.

DELHI, March 8.

In the debate on the military budget in the Assembly, the majority of speakers attacked the proposed expenditure.

Mr. Gour, leader of the Democratic Party, demanded reduction of military expenditure to 20 per cent. of the revenue according to principles which he said were enunciated at the Brussels conference. Otherwise he threatened his party would use its constitutional powers to arrest progress of the budget.

The general tone of the debate showed that Lord Rawlinson's speech had stiffened the non-official Indian opposition to the budget. Bitter disappointment was expressed at his uncompromising attitude.

Sir William Hailey, winding up the debate, emphasised that the four years' deficits were due to the Afghan and other unforeseen wars which had cost 25 crores and to the transference of central revenues to the provinces under the reform scheme. He declared that the estimates could not be reduced.

INDIA AND THE NEAR EAST.

After consulting the provincial governments, the Indian Government telegraphed Mr. Montagu, Secretary for India, in connection with the Allied discussion of Near East situation opening in Paris on March 22, emphasising India's war services and urging revision of the Treaty of Sevres, evacuation of Constantinople, recognition of the Sultan's suzerainty over holy places, and restoration to Turkey of Smyrna and the Ottoman Thrace, including Adrianople.

BOTTOMLEY PROSECUTED.

VICTORY BOND CLUB CHARGE.

LONDON, March 8.

Mr. Horatio Bottomley was charged at Bow Street to-day with conversion to his own use £5,000 the property of the Victory Bonds Club.

The defendant, who personally conducted his own case, unsuccessfully applied for an adjournment owing to contemporaneous proceedings in the High Court.

Prosecuting counsel contended on the ground of the original circular inviting subscriptions for the Victory Bonds Club that Bottomley was not entitled to draw a shilling out of the trust account for himself, yet from the beginning to the end £493,000 was received and dealt with by him unchecked by any human being. No trustees and no auditors were ever appointed. Counsel alleged that of the £20,000 from the trust account paid by Bottomley into his private account, £5,000 was for the purpose of keeping up residences at Ostend.

Mr. Bottomley interjected: "Rubbish!"

Counsel intimated that there would be other charges. The hearing was adjourned for a week.

GERMANY'S LOST CABLES.

ALLIED DIVISION PLAN.

Washington, March 8.

The Acting Secretary of State, Mr. Fletcher, as chairman of the International Communications Conference, has presented to the ambassadors of Britain, France, Italy and Japan plans for the distribution of all former German cables.

It is understood that it is proposed to divide the cables into five equal parts on the basis of their present commercial value with monetary compensation for the power receiving stations situated there. The division is impracticable. Compensation depends largely on the absence of France to represent the other conference members in the conference.

IRISH SITUATION IMPROVES.

REPUBLICANS LOSING GROUND.

GOVERNMENT'S AUTHORITY INCREASING.

LONDON, March 8.

Improvement in the situation in Ireland was indicated by the Lord Chancellor in a speech in the House of Lords in the course of which he said there was every reason to believe public opinion in Ireland was consolidating itself behind the Provisional Government. This tendency was being hastened by the high-handed and lawless acts committed by the recalcitrant section of the Republican Army.

The Lord Chancellor asserted that the Provisional Government's authority was at present recognised over the greater part of the South, but two or three districts were in a state of complete disaffection in consequence of the attitude of the pro-republican military forces. The Provisional Government was sanguine, however, that with the passage of a little time it would be strong enough to deal with the situation.

The Lord Chancellor acknowledged the situation was still anxious but said it was gratifying that former opponents to British rule felt it a duty and responsibility to put down an avowedly republican movement.

LIMERICK SITUATION.

LONDON, March 8.

A thousand I.R.A. troops have arrived at Limerick where the situation is unchanged. Hopes of a peaceable settlement have been strengthened with the arrival of the Provisional Government Minister of Defence. Negotiations with the insurgent I.R.A. are proceeding.

IRISH TREATY BILL PASSED.

LONDON, March 9.

The final stages of discussion of the Irish treaty bill were reached in the House of Commons when Mr. Winston Churchill said the highest strength of the Free State would be 30,000 men, composed of regulars and territorials, but the quota would be proportionately less if later contracted to remain out. The third reading was carried 295 to 52 votes, after a motion for rejection had been negatived.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES.

BRITISH RELIEF MONEY MISUSED.

LONDON, March 8.

Mr. Lloyd George who is better, presided over the Cabinet at Downing Street this morning and considered inter alia a proposal to lend Russia £350,000 for famine relief.

The Premier leaves for Criccieth to-morrow and is expected to be absent ten days.

A feature of the discussion in the House of Commons yesterday evening on the supplementary estimate for the War Office was the fear expressed by Labour members and others that money voted for Russian refugees was being improperly used. It was suggested that some of the money was finding its way to General Wrangel and a rumour that Wrangel was mobilising refugees with a view to attack on Soviet Russia was mentioned by Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who described the rumour as a cook and bull story.

PREMIER STILL INDISPOSED.

LONDON, March 9.

Mr. Lloyd George is still indisposed. He has deferred his departure to Wales until to-morrow.

PACKING INDUSTRY.

DISASTROUS YEAR.

LONDON, March 8.

The report of the Chicago packing firm of Armour and Company for 1921 describes the year as the most disastrous in the history of the packing industry. The fall in meat prices and high costs resulted in a loss of $30,000,000 which was met from the accumulated surplus. The firm's reserves on January 1 were over $80,000,000. The report expresses the opinion that the worst is over and there is every reason to anticipate better times.

WHITE AUSTRALIAN POLICY.

BARNETT RETURNS TO THE ATTACK.

LONDON, March 8.

The South Australian Premier, Mr. Barnett, who is expected to return to the House of Representatives on Monday, has written to the Times supporting the White Australia policy. He is convinced that it is the only policy which will secure the future of the Commonwealth. He says that the White Australia policy is the only policy which will secure the future of the Commonwealth. He says that the White Australia policy is the only policy which will secure the future of the Commonwealth.

NEW CHINA.

THE SEED BED OF A NEW CIVILIZATION.

China is traditionally a land of leisure, but the visiting foreigner must not hope for much personal experience of this side of Chinese life, writes Bertrand Russell in the "Nation and Athenaeum." The busiest thirty hours I ever spent in my life were spent in Chang sha, a city which is reached by travelling up the Yangtze for three or four days from Shanghai to Hankow, and then going south for another day across a vast lake. In spite of its remoteness it is a Treaty Port. When I arrived in Changsha, there was educational Congress in session, at which all kinds of people lectured on all kinds of subjects.
During my thirty hours I gave four lectures and two after dinner speeches, and attended a great reception at the American hospital. My lectures, which were on Russia, displeased the students by being somewhat critical of the Bolsheviks, whom almost all Chinese students passionately admire.
I spent the night (in a Chinese hotel), as Saint Paul spent his time in Ephesus, fighting with wild beasts.
So on the whole my impression of Changsha was lacking in Oriental charm.

EFFICIENCY IN EVIL.

The proceedings ended with a great feast given by the Tuchun, the military governor of the Province of Hunan. Most Tuchuns are wicked; indeed they are the chief internal source of trouble in China. They intercept the provincial revenue and spend it on raising private armies: they indulge in war, one against another; and they practise depredations in the style of Verres. A British missionary, for many years resident at Changsha, assured me that the predecessor of our host had, in two years, amassed a fortune of thirty million dollars, partly by downright robbery and partly by debasing the currency in his province.
At the end of that time he had fled from popular vengeance with his plunder to Japan, where, I gathered, he is living happily ever afterwards. An Englishman not accustomed to China might expect to find, in consequence of this worthy's activities, such scenes of devastation as are now to be seen in Eastern Europe, but he would be agreeably disappointed. The city seemed prosperous, and its inhabitants seemed happy; to a superficial eye, there was nothing to show the harm that had been done. Chinese scoundrels have still much to learn from the West as regards efficiency in evil, and it was clear that the absconding Tuchun had done far less harm than is done by the "honest" Governments of the Great Powers.
The Chinese Government does some harm to its own people, but none to anybody else: from an international point of view, it is the best Government in the world, because it is the most inefficient.

THE VIRTUOUS TUCHUN.

However, the Tuchun who was our host was an exception to the general rule being perfectly virtuous and a great friend of education. (He fell a few weeks after my visit.) The guests were received in one vast hall, and banqueted in another. The food was European, there was an endless succession of courses and an infinite variety of wines. Our host, through an interpreter apologized to me for the frugal fare he was offering in his humble abode, but said he thought we would rather have a glimpse of every day Chinese life than be treated to a display of pomp and splendour.
I tried to remember quickly all I had read of Chinese etiquette, and mumbled something about my pig-ship being honoured that His Magnificence should deign to notice me; but I fear I was not very adequate.

If the Tuchun displayed something of traditional Chinese manners, the after-dinner speeches differed from those of Europe in the opposite direction, by being free from make-believe and humour, very serious and very businesslike. Professor Dewey spoke of Chinese education and of the lines along which it should progress. Mrs. Dewey informed the dignitaries of Changsha that in some provinces no education had been adopted, and that Hunan ought to do likewise. To this the Tuchun made a statesmanlike reply, promising that the matter should receive his best consideration, and that action should be taken when the time was ripe. Various Chinese educationists, whose speeches were interpreted into English by Chinese interpreters, spoke of their aims and their efforts, and of what they hoped from their European and American guests. Reverence for ages is traditional in China, and many modern Chinese transfer this attitude to the educationists who come from foreign countries. Their expectations are so far beyond our power as to be often embarrassing. It is very difficult to explain that one is not a deity without feeling that one is a deity.

ASSIMILATING THE WEST.

The educationists and the students in China are extraordinarily keen, and there is no doubt that the movement for modern education represents the most solid advance that is being made.
The Chinese who have been at foreign universities do not become unbalanced or unable to see what is good in China. Their native civilization is sufficiently strong to enable them to assimilate what the West has to teach without becoming simply Europeans; and, strange to say, they like our best better than our worst. They are as a rule, less learned than Japanese professors, but more genuinely cultivated, more open-minded, more capable of a scientifically sceptical outlook.
Nationalism and religion, the two great enemies of honest thought in the West, are absent from the educated classes in China; respect for Confucius is not excessive among those who have assimilated Western culture. I was never conscious in China, as one almost always is in Japan, of a barrier to mutual comprehension. The Oriental is said to be inscrutable and remote, but this is certainly not true in China. I found the Chinese just as easy to talk to as the English, and just as easy (or as difficult) to understand psychologically.

THE DEAD-WEIGHT OF IGNORANCE.

But Young China has to contend against a terrible dead-weight of ignorance and superstition in the mass of the people. When I left the banquet to go on board the boat on which I was leaving Changsha, it happened that an eclipse of the moon was in progress. As in the earliest annals of Chinese history, the streets were full of people beating gongs to frighten away the Heavenly Dog who was supposed to be trying to eat up the moon; little bonfires were being lit everywhere to rekindle the moon's light by sympathetic magic. The missionary whom I mentioned earlier told me that often, as he walked about, he had heard passing by exorcists astonishment that he could bend the knee, because he was a "foreign devil," and devils have to keep their knees always straight. They also can only travel in straight lines, and therefore every Chinese house has the front door opening on to a blank wall, with the courtyard round the corner.
Even within the courtyard, a screen provides other screens, so that at worst the evil spirits cannot get beyond the servants' quarters. Great care has to be taken in putting up telegraph wires to prevent them from pointing straight at any man's house, because if they did they would help devils to get at him. There are innumerable superstitions of this kind, some merely picturesque, others very inconvenient. Educated people do not believe them, but they have to be respected in any public undertaking. Until recently, no house could be built of more than one story for fear of disturbing the spirits of the wind and the air.

SENATE AND THE TREATIES

LONDON, March 8th.

Washington messages show that the Pacific Treaty debate in the Senate is now well under way and will continue uninterruptedly until the vote is taken. The opening speeches stressed the importance to America of the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, but the irreconcilables declared that the Alliance had been extended by the inclusion of America and France.

Senator Borah asked whether the Pacific Treaty abrogated, nullified or modified the Lansing-Ishii Agreement.
Senator Underwood replied in the affirmative, but a resolution requesting information on subject from the President was finally passed with the assent of the Republicans.

In the course of the debate Senator Lodge described the Treaty as the most important matter at present before the country. He declared that a majority of the party intended to keep it continuously before the Senate until it was disposed of.

Some Democrats are attacking Senator Lodge, but it is considered that the mass of the American people will accept the Treaty with its compulsory agreements and are inclined to resent the time wasted on political hair-splitting when very important domestic questions await action.
The attitude of the more sane and cautious Democrats is supported by a statement by Mr. Bryan that the Treaty is merely an imitation of his contribution to foreign affairs when he was Secretary of State and that the Democrats should find a campaign issue in the domestic field. The Democrats, therefore, are unlikely to press the fight over the Treaties which the country generally applauds.

WHEN EDUCATION SPREADS.

The only cure for these superstitions is universal education, and for that, at present, there are not enough funds or enough modern teachers. But the love of education and respect for it are so great that one may hope to see it rapidly extended, provided political troubles can be sufficiently settled, for the money to be forthcoming. I hope that, when education becomes more widespread, it will be in the hands of the Chinese themselves, not in those of missionaries, clerical or lay, who want to spread our civilization as the finest thing on earth. China has short comings, which to us are very obvious, but it also has merits in which we are deficient. What is to be hoped is not that China should become like ourselves, reproducing our Napoleons and Bismarcks and Eminent Victorians, but that a new civilization should be developed, combining our knowledge with Chinese culture. The Chinese are capable of this, if they are encouraged but not coerced. The methods of Europe and Japan would force them in time to become like Japan, militaristic, imperialist, and brutal; the methods of America would persuade them to become like America. But if their development can be left free, I think they can give the world a new civilization, to carry on the arts and sciences after Europe has perished in a sea of blood.

AN ADMIRAL'S YARNS.

BREEZY TALES FROM SAILOR'S MEMOIRS.

There is a breezy, invigorating saline air about Admiral Dundas's memories of fifty years afloat, which he calls "An Admiral's Yarns," and which Mr. Herbert Jenkins published recently, says the Daily Chronicle.

He considers the most astonishing old sea-dog he ever met to be the captain of the "Shannon," who was in China in 1878:

"On his way out to the station he placed his staff-commander under arrest 56 times. In addition to wearing the most extraordinary uniform, his language used to make the pitch run, it was so hot.

"One day after drill he fell his men in on the quarter-deck, and told them that he had an old grandmother of 92 who would run up the main rigging 3-d-d 8ight faster than any of them would.

"On another occasion, when he was angry with his ship's company he told them they were all going to hell.
"And," he added, "I'm going there, too, and I'll make it d-d hot for some of you."

He tells this story of a naval officer who was boarding a bus during the rush hours in Armistice week:—

"About forty women occupied the conductor's platform, while another forty were clambering on to the step, on which he had just succeeded in placing his foot. Tempers were getting sorely tried, while sub-conscious swear-words floated about in the atmosphere.
Suddenly a woman just behind him, in her anxiety to get a place, seized him by the seat of his pants. Turning on her with great ferocity, he said:
"Madam if you will only leave me my trousers, I will give you the whole bus."

Admiral Dundas's father, who commanded a man-of-war in the Crimea in 1854, was one day steaming slowly up the Golden Horn, very close to the shore, when he ran his jib-boom through the window of a pasha's harem. Amidst the shrieks of the ladies and the angry shouts of the Turks, the vessel slowly backed out without doing any damage:—

"My father declared (says Admiral Dundas) that he was astounded by seeing a beautiful lady seated on the jib-boom, apparently delighted at her escape. He ran forward to the forecastle to offer her the hospitality of the ship; but she refused to move from her somewhat precarious position. Being obliged to return to the bridge to stop the engines, he later found to his dismay that the heavenly apparition had mysteriously faded away."

What became of the lady no one knew, as nobody had seen her but the susceptible captain, but she lived for ever in his memory and grew in beauty and fascination as the years waxed older.

FEW SEAMEN BACK.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES CANCELLED.

Three days have gone by since the seamen's strike was officially washed out but the men are not rushing back from Canton yet. Special train accommodation was arranged for and afterwards that was cancelled because it was believed that the men would prefer the free trip offering on the three river steamers which were sent up on Tuesday. All day long yesterday huge crowds of Chinese thronged the Praya. At first they concentrated around the Star Ferry Wharf ready to welcome with hands and banners and bugles any seamen who should return by the midday train.

Only a handful showed up when the express came in and so the crowd, not to be disappointed of its demonstration, held a procession through the streets. People who are able to decipher Chinese characters say that had the banners been inscribed in English they would never have got the length of the street. Some of them it is said bore inscriptions such as "We have vanquished the Europeans" and "Down with the foreign tyrants."

During the afternoon the crowd gathered along the Praya, down past the harbour office. They were waiting to see the "Heungshan" come in from Canton and when the boat eventually arrived at about midnight there were still many thousands there displaying welcoming lanterns. The other two boats arrived later. Inquiries made this morning disclosed that the "Heungshan" brought down about 400 passengers and the other two Chinese steamers brought about fifty between them.

"They don't seem to be at all keen on coming down" said an officer from one of the vessels in conversation with a China Mail reporter this morning. He said that huge processions were being held in Canton and the seamen appeared to be making high holiday there. His ship took a cargo of flour and they seemed hungry for it in Canton. There was plenty of cargo at Canton waiting to come down but they had refused a lot of it, thinking that they would be "choked a block" with seamen on the return journey.

The "Heungshan" left for Canton again this morning and will, in common with the other river boats resume its ordinary sailings. It is expected that a big crowd of seamen will come back to-night.

GETTING NORMAL AGAIN.

Mr. A. G. M. Fletcher, the assistant Colonial Secretary, announced to day that in to-morrow's issue of the Government Gazette the proclamation calling out the volunteers will be rescinded, the Emergency Ordinance regulations will be withdrawn and the restrictions upon the export of rice, flour and coal will be removed. Volunteer Orders state that as from to-day multi may be worn.

The hotels were carrying on as usual to-day and the restaurants, including Wiseman's Cafe, were also in full swing.

COASTERS RESUMING.

Though each day sees a few more coastal steamers resuming there are still 149 ships in the harbour. The Jardine steamer "Choy Sang" which was held up at Canton during the strike came back this morning and departures yesterday included the Chinese steamers "Wa Sun," "Hwah Kui," "Sui Yick," "Chung Hing" and "Pak Wo." They went away to Saigon, Shanmi, Hoibow and Tsingtao.

P. W. D. MEN THANKED.

A notice posted up in the corridor of the P.W.D. offices states that the Hon. Director of Public Works desires to express his thanks for all the services rendered by the European and other officers of the P.W.D. during the strike. "He appreciates fully" runs the announcement "the cheerful manner in which all were ready to respond to any demands made on them to assist the Government to carry on in this emergency."

Another notice addressed to the Chinese staff says: "The Hon. Director of Public Works wishes to thank all those members of the P.W.D. who remained faithfully at their posts and carried out their duties in the service of the Government in an efficient manner during the recent strike."

SEAMEN RETURN.

About a thousand returning seamen arrived back in the Colony by the mid-day train from Canton. They were met at the Kowloon station with a lusty welcome. About half formed a procession and marched through Kowloon. The other half came across the harbour and were met by a large

CORRESPONDENCE.

THAT DISPUTED REPORT.

[To the Editor of the "China Mail."]

Sr.—With reference to my letter to you of March 8, a statement appears in the Daily Press of March 9 that the information that Robinson had been released was obtained from Mr. Wodehouse, Deputy Superintendent of Police.

Mr. Wodehouse states that about 6 p.m. on the 7th March he received an enquiry by telephone from the Daily Press, whether the persons detained in connection with the strike had been released. He understood the enquiry to refer to persons detained in the Police cells and not to persons serving sentences in Gaol, and he replied in the affirmative. He states that Robinson's name was not mentioned.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
A. G. M. FLETCHER.

For the Colonial Secretary.

Hongkong, March 9, 1922.

[We are informed by the Editor of the Daily Press that his representative is equally sure that the question was clearly addressed to Mr. Wodehouse over the telephone and his reply was as stated. (Editor China Mail.)]

FEEDING THE COLONY.

MESSRS. LANE CRAWFORD'S FINE EFFORT.

Hongkong has a habit of taking things for granted, but even Hongkong cannot take for granted the splendid work done by Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Co., and its new enterprise, the Wiseman Cafe, during a sudden and grave crisis in the life of the community when complete breakdown, or any serious confusion, would have occasioned no surprise. From the beginning of the general strike, until the Chinese employees finally returned, the European staff, unaided, depleted even by several members going to the bakery, gallantly coped with the unprecedented rush for provisions. During the first excitement of the crisis the rush was so great that barriers had to be erected to regulate the crowds of waiting shoppers who took two days to realise that a firm of Messrs. Lane Crawford & Co.'s standing and importance carries ample supplies and maintains large reserves. How great was the demand is revealed by the number of customers served—between 500 and 600 a day.

Vitaly important to the life of the community was the work of the bakery and the labour of bread distribution. With the invaluable assistance of four Army and four Prison men, under the able charge of Mr. D. M. Goodall, the bakery's output was in the region of 3,000 lbs. a day. Passing through the Wiseman Cafe in orderly procession between 13,000 and 14,000 people were supplied with their portion of the staff of life. Special credit is due to Q.M.S. Turtle, Army Service Corps, without whose fine services the task would have greatly magnified in its difficulty. Mention must also be made of the fact that in addition to working under great pressure during the day, several members of Messrs. Lane, Crawford & Co.'s European staff also undertook volunteer night duty.

ANOTHER STRIKE!

The football referees are on strike. Just over a week ago the China Mail had an article suggesting that the Hongkong Football Association was too weak, and did not sufficiently support the decisions of these its servants. This week it met and proposed to wash out all past records of offences and start afresh. Whereupon all the qualified referees downed whistles. There will probably be no football on Saturday.

HOME TRADE.

MANCHESTER WEEKLY MARKET REPORT.

Messrs. James F. Hutton & Co., Ltd., Manchester, reported as follows on Wednesday, February 1.

Cotton prices have again fallen sharply, the markets being the weakest for some time. A general lack of confidence resulting in much liquidation appears to be the cause of the trouble and the continued absence of any signs of improvement in the state of the Lancashire trade is largely responsible for the nervousness. Much of the weakness undoubtedly originates in Liverpool at present, and this cannot be considered surprising in view of the very limited offer of actual cotton. For a long time the question of supply has engaged most attention, but as the falsification of the score on this account has now given place to the certainty of a crop considerably larger than was assumed, there has been more occasion recently to concentrate on the probabilities of consumption. Hitherto this factor hardly appears to have received the consideration due to it and in the light of the condition of the textile industry here, and the unsatisfactory outlook, there is little wonder that it should now exercise a very unsettling influence. It appears however to be recognized more generally that the obstacles to anything approaching normal trading are very deep rooted and are not likely to be speedily removed. Whilst it is possible that this may be over-emphasized, it is quite certain that a great deal of idle machinery must be started up and output be much increased before cotton prices can display any convincing firmness. Political considerations have also been of a depressing nature, chiefly the Egyptian situation, but fortunately this has now assumed a more hopeful outlook. Meanwhile however, forced sales in Alexandria have caused substantial falls in Egyptian cotton values. The Manchester market has naturally been affected by the drop in cotton prices, and intending buyers appear to be holding their hands pending some sort of stability. There has been a small miscellaneous enquiry, but only a very limited amount of business has resulted. The larger outlets remain very quiet but the tendency towards lower rates is all to the good, as cheapness must eventually result in a steadily increasing flow of business.

ABOUT COLDS.

Why is it that one person catches cold on the slightest provocation while another can undergo all sorts of exposure and changes of temperature without contracting a chill?

The answer is to be found in the condition of the system. This blooded people take cold easily. They need a tonic to strengthen the body to resist disease.

A cold that hangs on for weeks and stubbornly resists ordinary remedies may prove the entering wedge for serious illness. Such a cold generally results in loss of weight, thinning of the blood and general weakness.

This condition emphatically calls for a tonic to build up the blood. Rich, red blood will tone up the entire system strengthen the nerves and give health and vigour to the body.

Begin treatment at once with the non-alcoholic tonic which Mr. Walter Whitford, of No. 63 Paris Street, Everett, Mass., endorses. Its name is as well known to you as to the people of America where this gentleman lives.

WEST END RAID.A PEER'S TENANTS CHARGED.

A thrilling story of a raid on an alleged gaming-house in the West End was told at Marlborough-street Police Court when three men and a woman were charged before Mr. Donnan in connection with the management of the house, 48, Portland-place, which had been rented from Viscount Galway's agents.

The raid, according to the statement of the prosecuting solicitor, was made in the early hours of the morning by Superintendent Mackay and other officers, who had to force open three doors, one of which, it was said, masked the entrance to the gaming-room. By the time the police reached the gaming-room most of the frequenters, warned, it was suggested, of their approach, had gone into the ball room, where dancing was in progress.

The four defendants were Davis Falcke, 29, described as a commission agent, of 48, Portland-place; Mrs. Marjory Beryl Briseley, of the same address; Frederick Barlow, 61, butler, of Cowley road, Brixton, S.W.; and William James, 50, valet, of 48, Portland-place. Mr. Muskett appeared for the Commissioner of Police, Sir Henry Curtis-Bennett, K.C., defended Mrs. Briseley and Barlow, and Mr. Freke Palmer represented Falcke and James.

Explaining the charges, Mr. Muskett said that this was a case of what might be called gaming in high life. No. 48, Portland-place was let through the medium of agents to Mrs. Briseley. The mansion was furnished and was let for a period of six months from September 29, 1921, to March 1922, at an inclusive rent of £614 5s. for the six months, the rent to be payable monthly in advance.

This place, according to the prosecution, was taken solely for the purpose of running unlawful gaming by the man Falcke, the principal, who was one of the most inveterate gamblers and gaming-house keepers in London.

LOOKED DOORS.

Facts came to the notice of Superintendent Mackay, in whose division the mansion was situated, and observation kept on the house showed that a considerable number of persons were going there extremely late at night and leaving early in the morning. Superintendent Mackay obtained a warrant, and it was executed at 1.20 on the morning of January 17.

The superintendent rang the bell and Barlow opened the door. The superintendent explained who he was, and the butler said: "I cannot let you in; I have not got the key." The officer, accompanied by other officers, entered the house, went through the hall and through an open inner door into the inner hall.

From there they saw a screen about six feet high, which masked the approach to another door. This door was found to be locked, and the superintendent asked James, the valet, for the key. James made the same reply as Barlow: "I cannot open it as I have not got the key."

The superintendent shouted loudly to the persons who were manifestly on the other side of the door, but there was no response. That door, which was made of mahogany, was forced with great difficulty by the superintendent and his officers, the operation taking something like ten minutes.

Having got through that door the police found themselves in a kind of passage-way, and at its far end they came to another double door, which also was locked, and which also had to be forced. Passing through this door, an ante-room, and another passage, the officers reached the dining-room—the room that was undoubtedly used for gaming.

GAMING APPLIANCES.

Nothing was found in the dining-room, but a staircase led from that room into the kitchen. Going down the stairs, they found either on the stairs or in the basement ten men and three women. One of the men was Falcke. Some gaming counters were picked up on the stairs, and it would be proved that Falcke placed a number of counters on some straw in the basement.

Falcke was taken upstairs, and it was then noticed that there was a door leading from the dining-room into a conservatory. The door was covered with some kind of wallpaper with a mirror over it, giving the appearance that it was a disguised entrance to a disguised room. The superintendent asked Falcke to open the door, and he replied: "There are several rooms in this house which have been locked by Lord Galway, and I do not know what they contain."

Asked what the room was, Falcke said: "That belongs to Lord Galway. I do not know anything about it." It was possible by looking through the curtains at the side of the conservatory to obtain a view of the room, and it was seen that a number of gaming instruments were in the conservatory. The door was forced, and in the conservatory they found all the paraphernalia of a most elaborate and modern gaming establishment.

It was manifest that all the articles found in the conservatory had been removed from the dining-room before the police were able to gain access, fully a quarter of an hour having elapsed. Tables, cards, shoes, rakes, and all the appliances used in the game of baccarat, chemin-de-fer, and other games had been removed to the conservatory, in the hope that they would not be found by the police.

"DANCING AS A BLIND."

Documents found gave some idea of the expense of running an establishment of this kind. The tables, with fittings, cost £16 10s. and poker chips £14 10s. There were also cards and stamped cheque-books which, Mr. Muskett supposed, were used by some persons who bet. There was also a bill made out to Mrs. Briseley representing instruments costing £27. A second bill made out to no particular person was for £65. Another bill was for a solid cane-woven screen. A large baccarat table (produced in court) was also found, and a ledger in the house showed that between July 1921 and October 1921 Falcke was running no fewer than six gaming-houses.

When Falcke's notice was drawn to the implements and other things found in the house he said "I will take the whole responsibility. Don't touch these people. Let them go. Do what you can for me."

No frequenters of the place were arrested. There was a dance taking place in one of the rooms when the police entered, and dancing was one of the attractions by which people were induced to go to the house. In fact, the dancing was, according to the prosecution, a blind.

There were found either in the dancing-room or elsewhere 81 persons of both sexes and most of them were young. Mrs. Briseley was ill in bed. The other three defendants were taken to the police station and charged. On Falcke was found a large number of addresses with telephone numbers, so that persons could be rung up if their attendance at the house was speedily required.

The magistrate adjourned the case. Bail was allowed—Falcke in £500 and the others in their own recognisances of £20.

During January 82 vessels entered and cleared Bangkok of a total tonnage of 74,363. Passengers were 4,000, odd inward and 3,500 outward.

The obsolete Italian cruiser Vettor Pisani has been converted into a 10-knot cargo steamer and presents a very curious appearance with a score of purely warship features still in evidence.

POUND AND DOLLAR.VARIOUS FACTORS ACCOUNT FOR RECOVERY IN VALUE.

The remarkable recovery in the value of the pound sterling in relation to the dollar which has taken place recently is not due to any single cause. Yet the prospects of fair weather in international affairs which have been so greatly improved by the successful discussions at Washington in regard to naval disarmament and the problem of the Pacific, coupled with the Irish settlement have undoubtedly contributed very materially. It is more than two years since the dollar value of the pound stood at its present level, which represents a discount of about 14 per cent., compared with over 34 per cent. when the pound reached its nadir last year. Probably the expectation that some arrangement of the complicated problem of Allied debts and reparations will be reached in the near future has been taken into account in arriving at the present exchange ratio. Yet another factor is the steady decline in the amount by which the exports of the United States exceed her imports, while it is distinctly satisfactory to learn from our New York Correspondent that Britain's trade position is regarded in that quarter as encouraging. We may, we think, legitimately draw the deduction that one of the chief requisites for a general trade revival is some assurance of the returning stability in the political and economic atmosphere. Given that assurance, and the possibility that it will be forthcoming is growing brighter from day to day, we may shortly find that the return to prosperity has definitely begun.

There are several results which follow from any substantial rise in the dollar value of the pound which are of the first order of importance. A large proportion of our goods, most of our raw cotton, and great quantities of petroleum are obtained from the United States. Consequently the increased purchasing power of the pound in North America means not only an appreciable reduction in the cost of living, but a cheapening of the cost of road transport, thereby placing our manufacturers in a better position to compete in the world's markets. This much more than offsets any ill-effect that the appreciation of the pound may have on our sale of goods to North America.

The one important factor which does to some extent qualify the satisfaction with which we regard the increased value of the pound is the effect of this appreciation on the gold mining industry. Since the cost of working has risen far above the pre-war figures many gold mines have only been able to continue operations because of the premiums derived from the difference between the depreciated value of the pound sterling and its normal dollar parity.

This premium, until the recent steady rise in the value of the pound began some months ago, had remained for some time in the neighbourhood of 25 per cent. As we have pointed out, the premium has now sunk to about half that figure without any comparable reduction in working costs. The result must be to force many of the lower-grade mines to suspend operations until a further fall in the cost of mining shall enable them to be reopened on a profitable basis.

Consequently there is every prospect of a continued reduction in the world's gold output, failing the discovery of new goldfields of a richness that will enable the metal to be produced with profit. This fact cannot be overlooked in any serious consideration of the possibility of reversion to a gold standard. Indeed, there is room for grave doubt as to whether the gold supplies of the world will ever again be adequate to enable the metal to be used for currency purposes in the manner with which we were familiar before Treasury notes upset all our old ideas of prices and values.
